State Tests in Ohio

Ohio's State Tests (OST)

- » These tests are taken at the end of a school year or high school course. They measure what your child knows and can do based on Ohio's Learning Standards.
- » They help teachers target areas of improvement and where they need to support students. This helps teachers better prepare students for success in school, college, and careers.
- » OST results give information to the general public about how local schools are performing compared to other schools around the state.

Alternate Assessments for Students with the Most Significant Cognitive Disabilities (AASCD)

- » These statewide tests are for students with the most significant cognitive disabilities such as autism, multiple disabilities, traumatic brain injury, and intellectual disability.
- » These tests are for a very small number of students who are unable to participate in the Ohio's State Tests even with accommodations.
- » Participation should be documented in your child's IEP.

English Language Proficiency Tests

- » Ohio's English language proficiency tests are for children who have a primary or home language other than English and who would benefit from participation in the school's English language development program.
- » There are two English language proficiency tests: the Ohio English Language Proficiency Screener (OELPS) and the Ohio English Language Proficiency Assessment (OELPA). Both tests measure your child's ability to read, write, listen and speaking English and are based on Ohio's English Language Proficiency Standards.
- » Results of the OELPS identify children as English learners who may participate in the school's English language development program. The OELPA results determine whether your child continues as an English learner in the school. See the English Language Development Process infographic for more information.
